AQUATIC INVASIVE SPECIES ACTION CERTIFICATE FOR USED BOATS

- Federal & State Aquatic Invasive Species laws make it unlawful to possess or transport across state lines Dreissenid (Zebra & Quagga) Mussels &/or other aquatic invasive species. To this end, you, as the boat owner/agent, must ensure the boat is clean inside & out of all plants, animals, mud & debris. In addition, all water must have been drained from wells, bilges, ballasts, thru-hull fittings & engine cooling systems & allowed sufficient time for the boat to completely dry (typically at least a week). This cleaning, draining & drying of your boat must be done prior to loading the boat for transport.
- 43 States have AIS plans approved by the Federal Government (remaining states have plans under development) to control the spread of aquatic invasive species. These programs, generally referred to as watercraft inspection programs, are intended to prevent the spread of AIS through the inspection & decontamination of watercraft & equipment.
- Western states, (Including WA, OR, ID, MT, UT, CA, NV, AZ, CO, KS, NE, NM, SD, ND, OK, TX, WY, AK, & BC(Canada) have active monitoring, detection & decontamination programs to prevent & control the spread of aquatic invasive species such as Quagga & Zebra mussels. Many of the western states also have watercraft stations in place which require all boats to be stopped & inspected at entry into the state.
